National Steel Construction Co., 500 Myrtle St., Seattle - - -
Waste from the manufacture of hot water tanks, boilers, etc., consists of acid pickling liquor. At the present time, waste acid is discharged to the river untreated. Neutralization of the acid must be employed prior to discharge.
Bethlehem Steel Corp., 8501 E. Marginal Way, Seattle - - -
This industry fabricates and galvanizes steel, and wastes consist of acid pickling liquor which is hauled away for land disposal, and caustic wash water which is discharged to the river. It is essential that neutralization of the caustic wash takes place before discharge.
Kenworth Motor Truck Corp., 8801 E. Marginal Way, Seattle - - -
Caustic wash water, acid and oil comprise the liquid wastes from Kenworth. Acid is disposed of on land, and the caustic wash receives a 15 to 1 dilution before discharge. However, an oil separator is needed at this plant to keep excessive oil from entering the storm sewer which ultimately discharges to the Duwamish.
A & B Barrel Co., 8604 Dallas Ave., Seattle - - - In the reconditioning and repainting of used barrels and drums, the A & B Barrel Co. uses about one ton per month of sodium hydroxide as a cleaning agent. Liquid waste, including oils, grease and sodium hydroxide is discharged to a small pond and thence to the Duwamish. An analysis of the waste revealed a concentration of 940 ppm NaOH, which in itself, is toxic to aquatic life. Dilution with river water would reduce concentrations to safe levels, but there is undoubtedly a lethal zone in the immediate vicinity of the outfall. Correction should be made either by dilution, neutralization, chemical recovery, or some other adequate waste treatment method.
