TRANSFERRING BIOSOLID FROM STORAGE TO APPLICATION FIELDS ON PUBLIC ROADS

THIS PLAN MUST BE IN TRANSPORT / APPLICATION VEHICLE

INTRODUCTION

This Spill Prevention and Response Plan is being submitted as required by the General Permit for Biosolids Management. Fire Mountain Farms hauls dewatered biosolids from storage units to application sites with a truck mounted spreader, truck and trailer or tractor pulled spreader.

ROUTE TRAVELED

Storage units are located at Burnt Ridge. Sites we will haul to are located 45915 Alder Cutoff Road E. Eatonville, WA 98328 & 723 Johnson Road Onalaska, WA 98570 & 1633 Middle Fork Road Onalaska, WA 98570. Routes may vary due to traffic or other issues but be consistent with haul routes noted in attached maps. If construction or other issues require us to deviate routes will be submitted to Dept. Of Ecology.

SPILL PREVENTION MEASURES

To minimize the possibility of spills, Fire Mountain Farms has implemented the following measures:

- All vehicles are regularly inspected and serviced
- Drivers never exceed the posted speed limit and only travel at speeds appropriate for current road conditions
- Vehicles are to be “leak-proof” upon purchase and are regularly examined to ensure no leaking occurs
- Drivers consult the Washington State Department of Transportation’s website during times of possible inclement weather

EQUIPMENT TO ADDRESS A SPILL

In order to be able to promptly and properly respond to a spill, Fire Mountain Farms equips all biosolids transportation vehicles with the following:

- A copy of the most current Spill Prevention and Response Plan
- A cell phone
- Gloves and boots
- Reflective traffic cones or triangles
- A shovel

SPILL RESPONSE MEASURES

- If the spill has or could result in an emergency situation: dial 911
- If the spill is small: use shovel to remove all biosolids and place back into the truck
- If the spill is large and may obstruct traffic for an extended period: contact the appropriate Department of Transportation regional office or County road department
