EARLY 2010

* The TAG is composed of technical experts from government, the tribes, local water service and environmental organizations and provides an outside technical review and assessment of competitive proposals. The CRIT includes Ecology, Washington Dept of Fish and Wildlife, and Washington Conservation Commission staff. The CRIT includes agency staff, and is responsible for reviewing TAG results, while considering other factors including geographic equity, fiscal implications and the opportunities to provide water where and when it is needed.

 The PAG is made up of representatives from federal, state, & local governments, the tribes, irrigation districts, public utility districts, and business and environmental organizations.
