Mr. Jennings,

I would like to express my sentiments about the debate surrounding spraying for mosquitoes near waterways in the Tri-City area.

I live along the river and enjoy boating other outdoor activities. Mosquitoes are a nasty pest that can bring regret any and every time one ventures outdoors in the summer months near twilight. As a Pasco resident, I would like to say that I am most heartily in favor of continuing to spray to prevent the mosquito pest in and near the water. The benefits of preventing the discomfort and risk of mosquito-borne viruses (namely West Nile) far outweighs the small amount of residue left in the water.

Respectfully yours,
Cedric Thiel
