Re: Chapter 173-201A WAC Water Quality Standards for Surface Waters of the State of Washington

I think that the Department of Ecology should increase water quality standards so that one can eat more fish per day/month/year/lifetime with the lowest possible chance of becoming sick due to increased toxins. I eat more fish than the state currently sets as a safe standard. Any reasonable person can agree that to provide the cleanest, least toxic water discharge going into our lakes, rivers and salt water in this state is a the only way to go. Clean water is simply required for us and for our environment to live. There should be no compromise in water standards and the state and cities in Washington should spare no cost at bringing up these standards in any way possible.

Sincerely,
