To Whom it may concern:

As a Washington State resident I want my state to have the highest Water Quality Standards (WQS) possible. Water is the corner stone of a healthy community and economy. Toxins in our water can find their way into our homes, environment, and food supply if they are allowed within our water.

I consume Salmon, fish, and other seafood on a regular basis. It is a big part of living and enjoying the Pacific Northwest coast. Our WQS are too low right now. They need to be more strict. Oregon's standards are based on a Fish Consumption Rate of 175 grams. I want to see ours based on 175 grams or more (I believe 250 would be best). Can't we do better than Oregon?

Sincerely,
